MEYERSDALE, Aug. 12.—During an electric storm that passed over this section last Friday evening, the barn belonging to Edward Walker, a short distance east of Meyersdale, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. It is a very heavy loss to Mr. Walker, as it was practically a new barn, having been built only about seven years ago.

The contents consisting of over 400 bushels of wheat, 10 tons of hay, several hogs and a lot of chickens, besides a lot of farm implements were destroyed. The cattle and horses had been turned in pasture for the night, otherwise they too would have perished in the flames. The barn was insured but the amount will not begin to cover the loss.

"But—you told him he could!" wailed the widow.

"What if I did? I didn't know 'twas going to snow like this, did I?"

"But it wasn't snowin' when they went," said Mrs. Gormley, plucking up some little spirit. "I'm sure it wasn't Chetwood's fault. Oh, dear!"

"Woman," groaned Joseph Stagg, "it doesn't matter whose fault it is—or if it's anybody's fault. The mischief's done. The ice is breaking up. It's drifting out of the inlet."

Just at this moment an unexpected voice broke into the discussion.

"Are you positive they went out on the cove to slide, Mrs. Gormley?"

"Oh, yes, I be, Mandy," answered the seamstress. "Chet said he was goin' there, and what Chet says he'll do, he always does."

"Then the ice has broken away and they have been carried out into the lake," groaned Mr. Stagg.

Mandy Parlow came quickly to the little hall.

"Perhaps not, Joseph," she said, speaking directly to the hardware dealer. "It may be the storm. It snows so fast they would easily get turned around—he unable to land the shore."

Another reverberating crash echoed from the cove. Mrs. Gormley wrung her hands.

"Oh, my Chet! Oh, my Chet!" she wailed. "He'll be drowned!"

"He won't be, if he's got any sense," snapped Mr. Stagg. "I'll get some men and we'll go after them."

"Call the dog, Joseph Stagg. Call the dog," advised Miss Amanda.

"Huh? Didn't Prince go with 'em?"

"Oh, yes, he did," wailed Mrs. Gormley.

"Call the dog, just the same," repeated Amanda Parlow. "Prince will hear you and bark."

"God bless you! So he will," cried Mr. Stagg. "You've got more sense than any of us, Mandy."

"And I'll have the chapel bell rung," she said.

"Huh! what's that for?"

"The wind will carry the sound out across the cove. The boy, Chet, will recognize the sound of the bell and it will give him an idea of where home is."

"You do beat all!" exclaimed Joseph Stagg, starting to leave the house.

"Find a cap of Chet's, Mrs. Gormley," she commanded. "Don't you see Mr. Stagg has no hat? He'll catch his death of cold."

"Why, I never thought!" He turned to speak directly to Miss Amanda, but she had gone back into the room and was putting on her outer wraps. Mrs. Gormley, red-eyed and weeping, brought the cap.

Mr. Stagg plunged down the steps and kept on down the hill to the water front. There was an eating-place here where the waterside characters congregated, and Mr. Stagg put his head in at the door.

"Some of you fellows come out with me on the ice and look for a little girl—and a boy and a dog," said Mr. Stagg. "Like enough, they're lost in this storm. And the ice is going out!"

They all rushed out of the eating-house and down to the nearest dock. Even the cook went, for he chanced to know Carolyn May.

"And let me tell you, she's one rare little kid," he declared, out of Mr. Stagg's hearing. "How she come to be related to that hard-as-nails Joe Stagg is a puzzle."

The hardware dealer might deserve this title in ordinary times, but this was one occasion when he plainly displayed emotion.

Hannah's Carolyn, the little child he had learned to love, was somewhere on the ice in the driving storm. He would have rushed blindly out on the rotten ice, bareheaded and alone, had the others not halted him.

Joseph Stagg stood on the dock and shouted at the top of his voice:

"Prince! Prince! Prince!"

The wind must have carried his voice a long way out across the cove, but there was no reply.

Then, suddenly, the clear silver tone of a bell rang out. Its pitch carried through the storm startlingly clear.

There was a movement out in the cove. One field of ice crashed against another. Mr. Stagg stifled a moan and was one of the first to climb down to the level of the ice.

"Have a care, Joe," somebody warned him. "This snow on the ice will mask the holes and fissures something scandalous."

But Joe Stagg was reckless of his own safety. He started out into the snow, shouting again:

"Prince! Prince! Here, boy! Here, boy!"

There was no answering bark.

The clanging of the chapel bell was a comforting sound. Joseph Stagg did not know that, unable to find the sexton, Amanda Parlow had forced the church door and was tugging at the rough rope herself.

Back and forth she rang the iron clapper, and it was no uncertain note that clanged across the storm-driven cove that afternoon. It was not work to which Carolyn May's "pretty lady" was used. Her shoulders soon ached and the palms of her hands were raw and bleeding. But she continued to toll the bell without a moment's surcease—on and on, till her brain swam and her breath came chokingly from her lungs.

"Joe! Joe!" she muttered each time that she bore down on the bell rope, and the iron tongue shouted the word for her, far across the snow-blotted cove.

Carolyn May was not the first of the trio caught out on the moving ice to be frightened. Perhaps because she had such unbounded faith in the good intentions of everybody toward her, the child could not imagine anything really hurting her.

"Oh, isn't this fun!" she crowed, bending her head before the beating of the storm. "Do hang on, Princey."

But Prince could not hang on so well, now that they faced the wind. He slipped off the sled twice, and that delayed them. Under his skates, Chet could feel the ice heave, while the resonant cracks followed each other like a fire of musketry.

"Goodness me!" gasped Carolyn May, "the ice seems to be going all to pieces, Chet. I hope it won't till we get back to the shore."

"I'm hopin' that, too," returned the boy.

He had quickly realized that they were in peril, but he would not let Carolyn May see that he was frightened—no, indeed!

The boy unstrapped the skates swiftly. He had a very good reason for removing them. If the ice was breaking up into floes, he might skate right off into the water, being unable to halt quickly enough, if on the steel runners.

He now plodded on, head down, dragging the sled and the child, with Prince slipping and scratching along beside them.

Suddenly he came to open water. It was so broad a channel that he could not hope to leap it; and, of course, he could not get the sled and the little girl across.

"My!" cried Carolyn May, "that place wasn't here when we came out, was it, Chet? It must have just come here."

"I don't think it was here before," admitted the boy.

Suddenly a sound reached their ears that startled both; it even made Prince prick up his ears and listen. Then the dog sat up on his haunches and began to howl.

"Oh, don't Prince!" gasped Carolyn May. "Who ever told you you could sing, just because you hear a church bell ringing?"

"That's the chapel bell!" cried Chet Gormley. "Now I'm sure I'm right. But we must get around this open patch in the water."

He set off along the edge of the open water, which looked black and angry. The ice groaned and cracked in a threatening way. He was not sure whether the floe they were on had completely broken away from the great mass of ice in the cove and was already drifting out into the lake or not.

Haste, however, he knew was imperative. The tolling of the chapel bell coming faintly down the wind, Chet drew the sled swiftly along the edge of the opening, the dog trotting along beside them, whining. Prince plainly did not approve of this.

"Here it is!" shouted the boy in sudden joy. "Now we'll be all right, Carolyn May!"

"Oh, I'm so glad, Chet," said the little girl. "For I'm getting real cold, and this snow makes me all wet."

"Keep up your heart, Carolyn May," he begged. "I guess we'll get through all right now."

"Oh, I'm not really afraid," the little girl answered. "Only I'd really like to be on shore."

Chet hastened on toward the sound of the tolling bell, sharply on the watch for other breaks in the ice.

Here was another—a wide-spreading crevasse filled with black water. Chet had no idea to which direction he should turn. And, indeed, it seemed to him as though the opening was growing wider each moment. The ice on which they stood must be completely severed from that further up in the inlet!

The boy had become frightened. Carolyn May had little idea of their danger. Prince sat up and howled. It seemed to the boy as though they were in desperate straits, indeed.

"You've got to be a brave girl, Carolyn May," he said. "I'm goin' to swim across this place and then drag you over. You stick to the sled and you won't scarcely get wet even."

"Oh, Chet! don't you dare get drowned!" begged Carolyn May, terrified now by the situation.

He turned a bright face on her as he struck out for the edge of the other ice floe. Chet might not have been the wisest boy who ever lived, but he was brave, in the very best sense of the word.

"Don't worry about me, Carolyn May," he chattered.

The desperate chill of the water almost stopped the boy's heart.

Three strokes took him across the patch of open water.

"We'll be all right in a minute, Carolyn May!" he called, climbing to his feet.

And then he discovered something that almost stunned him. The line he had looped around his wrist had slipped off! He had no way of reaching the rope attached to the sled save by crossing back through the water.

Chet felt that he could not do it.

"Oh, Chet! Chet!" wailed Carolyn May, "you've dropped my rope!"

What he should do, poor Chet could not think. His brain seemed completely clouded.

But what was the little girl doing?

He saw her hauling in on the wet rope and she seemed to be speaking to Prince, for he stood directly before her, his ears erect, his tail agitated. By and by he barked sharply.

"Now, Princey!" Chet heard her cry.

She thrust the end of the rope into the dog's jaws and waved her mittened hand towards the open water and the unhappy Chet beyond it.

Prince sprang around, faced the strait of black water, shaking the end of the rope vigorously. Chet saw what she meant and he shrieked to the dog.

GIVE THE BOYS A GLAD WELCOME.

Connellsville must not forget its obligation to the boys who in 1898 answered their country's call with no less eagerness than those who preceded or came after them. Tomorrow the veterans of the 10th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, which crossed the continent and the Pacific to help Dewey maintain the honor and traditions of American soldiers and sailors at Manila, will assemble in Connellsville in annual reunion.

After a victorious campaign against the Spaniards and later against the Philippine insurrections, the regiment returned to this country, receiving one of the most remarkable ovations ever given any body of American troops. Connellsville extended a home-coming welcome to Company D that has never since been surpassed in genuine enthusiasm and pride in the achievements of our fellow town-men.

When the members of the "Fighting Tenth" gather once more to renew friendships and to recount the incidents of the great adventure, we must do them fitting honor and cause them to know that the example of loyalty and patriotism they gave to the younger men who today are carrying The Flag on the fields of France, is appreciated at its full value by the patriotic citizens of Connellsville and vicinity.

Give the boys of '98 as hearty a welcome as they in turn will help extend to the boys of '17 when they come back to gladden our hearts and swell
our breasts with pride as the homecoming of the former did 19 years ago.

"JOURNALISTIC JUDGMENT."

One day our contemporary holds it unwise to have printed "legitimate"
war news which appeared in its columns the day before. Next day, and "in the absence of more specific information," it decides, "as a matter of journalistic judgment," to "take a chance" in printing what the day before it "did not regard as wise to print."

We stand in more or less reverent awe of "journalistic judgment" and "wisdom," that is so strikingly exemplified!

Nothing would so delight the veterans of the "Old Tenth" as to be permitted to be a part of the 11th and celebrate their nineteenth reunion by going after "the Times" like they went after the Dons and the "niggers" in the Philippines.

The collapse of the "made in Germany" Bolsheviks is merely pointing the way toward which Germany herself is speeding; hence being urged to quicker movement by several million reasons made in America.

Of What Are We Thinking?

By George Farr McCutcheon.

What is in the mind of the American citizen while "The Star Spangled Banner" is being played?

Or what are we thinking?

Are we thinking of the flag and all that it stands for, or are our minds otherwise engaged?

Of course, it is reasonably certain that we are thinking of something,
but have our thoughts the slightest connection with the message our flag is carrying to the enemy?

We obediently arise with the first sonorous note of the anthem and we remain standing till the end. We have learned, or we are learning, to "face
the music" more or less at attention, and we are developing the conviction that it is an offence to chatter while the strains of our war-song, perhaps our death-song, fill our ears. But are we thinking of "The Star Spangled Banner?"

Or are we silently urging the musicians to hurry up and be done with it so that we may resume an interrupted occupation? Are we impatiently waiting to take up a broken conversation; a game of bridge; the telling of a story; the reading of a newspaper; the liberal art of criticizing the War Department, the Navy or the Administration; or, what is infinitely more incompatible, exploiting the hateful efficiency of the foe?

We sit in public places, and we arise because we are in public places.
We suspend for the moment our physical interests, and we look about us to see if other people are doing the same? Some of us get up grudgingly and stand as we happen to have been sitting, with our backs to the music;
some of us go on knitting; others of us continue to keep our hands in our pockets and our cigars in our mouths;
others think that nothing more is required of them than the lowering of the voice to an undertone; others consider a bland expression of resignation to be efficient; and some fall into an attitude of tolerant submissiveness. There is little or no evidence of exaltation, no sign of an inward thrill, no suggestion of a profound emotion. The beautiful, inspiring concentration of thought that attends the "Marseillaise" is lacking;
the full-hearted sensation that glorifies
"Rattle Britannia" is absent; even the fervor of the Teuton as symbolized in guttural acclaim is sadly wanting. We, the most imaginative, the most alert people in the world, are totally devoid of imagination during the rendition of our war-song.

Why should we not think, or even pray, as the French, the English and the Germans think and pray while their song of hope is being sounded?

"The Star Spangled Banner" is our battle-song. It goes into the thick of the fight with our flag and our boys.
It emphasizes our hopes, our aims, our longings; and of what are we thinking,—we who stay at home,— while its strains are falling upon our ears? Are we, so to speak, playing the game?

Why shouldn't we, one and all,
great and small, think alike for as long as five minutes in each day? Let there be but one thought, one prayer, while the hymn is ringing. From one end of this great land to the other let this be the beginning of our prayer
the instant the band strikes up "The Star Spangled Banner":

"God be with our flag and our soldiers and our arms wherever they may be!"

And let this be the end of our devout, intensified prayer as the last note dies away:

"God give us Victory!"

Not perfunctorily, not as a matter of duty, but with our hearts in it, our nerves quivering, our eyes glowing with the fire of enthusiasm.

One thought, one prayer in a hundred million minds!

Every heart full, every mind intent as we face the enemy! For, after all, this Star Spangled banner of ours is facing the foe in a far-off land, and there is no other direction in which we may look.

Our men go with the banner to the music of guns; we stand at home and face, not the guns, but a group of fiddlers! Our thoughts, our prayers, reverberations should be the same as theirs. Our silent prayer, however brief, should be for Victory. Let us always utter it, one and all, while "The Star Spangled Banner" is being played.

"God give us Victory!"

Rippling Rhymes

By Walt Mason.

GOING DRY.

This land of ours is going dry, the grapevines close their swinging doors, and soon the man that wants old rye
will have to swim to foreign shores.

John Bartercorn has met his fate,
he's being pushed clear off the map;
and we must learn to celebrate with sparkling water from the tap. There is no grilling on the grill; dry people call for Adam's ale, and fill themselves with babbling rills. The workman buys a house and lot with money that he used to blow for bums and beer. The girl who had her head and soul with woe, tired father laps up sparkling brooks, instead of seeking gilded halls, and has some coin to spend for books and pictures for the parlor walls. The young man bids the village pond, when there has given him the blues; and then he buys a U. S. bond, which is a better thing than booze. The war has killed the Demon Rum, has been a hoar and deadly frost; and men will say, in years to come, the war was worth whatever it cost! The grimy chute its latticed doors, the red nosed patrons don't crowd in; the jewelled barkeep no more pours rainwater in the keg of gin. The thirsty man thinks not of beer, but to the nearest hydrant tramps, and quaffs a flagon bright and clear, then buys himself War Saving Stamps.

Just Folks

A LITTLE TALK WITH NIETSCHE.

Nietzsche, oh, where is your superman bluff?

Where is your deep philosophical stunt?

What has become of the poison you sprung?

What has been done to your doctrine of "dread?"

What has occurred to your marvelous dream?

Something has battered your wonderful scheme.

Look at it now as it staggers and rolls.

Look at it now, it is shot full of holes!

Gaze on your Superman! See how he runs.

From American dough boys who capture his guns.

Nietzsche, they've shattered your pillar of gloom!

See your philosophy go to its doom!

Time was that dreamers said you were the wisest.

College professors who lacked common sense.

Talked of the race that would some day arise.

To govern the world and to order
the skies—

Mentioned the mystery man to surpass.

Every known mortal and every known class.

Look at your Superman running away
From American dough boys in battle, today!

Nietzsche! Too deeply the Kaiser has drunk

Of your poisonous, dizzying, brainstorming bluff! Believed it, and thought it was great.

And now he is plunging headlong to his fate.

Oh, time when your system looked fine
to the eye.

And many have called you a wonderful guy.

But never again will you turn a man's head.

Never you'll set any monarch insane!
Never more in this world will your writings be sold!

The dough boys have knocked your philosophy cold.

The dough boys from Kansas and Michigan, too.

From Prince and Dallas and Kalamazoo.

From the lakes to the gulf, from the coast to the coast.

Have ridiculed and punctured that
superman bluff!

They've teased and shattered, and battered and kicked.

The "superman" marvel that couldn't be kicked.

Never more will the world pay attention to you.

Good night, Mr. Nietzsche, your season is through.

Your start was a bluff, but your finish was punk.

For the dough boys have ruined that
superman bluff!

NEWS OF THE DAY AT MT. PLEASANT BRIEFLY RELATED

Man Arrested on Charge of Threatening Health Officer.

ORDERED OUT OF TOWN, RETURNS

Margaret Clark Tells Policeman She Came Back for Shoes She Had Forgotten; Leads Him Merry Chase; Personal and Other News Events.

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, Aug. 12.—James Bowman, who dumped garbage on West Smithfield street on Saturday afternoon and threatened Health Officer H. C. Jaquette with a hatchet when he approached him concerning the dumping of garbage on the street, was arrested by Acting Police Chief Joseph White and given a hearing Saturday evening. He is being held at the lockup.

Came Back for Shoes.
Margaret Clark, who had been warned by the burgess to stay out of town, came back on Saturday and Police Officer McCullough was notified. When the woman learned that the police knew she was in town she started to run towards Bridgeport and led Officer McCullough a merry chase that took him almost to Bridgeport. When taken before the burgess Saturday evening, Margaret stated that she had forgotten to take her shoes and had come back for them. She is being held for a few days until they can determine what is best to do with her.

Infant Dies.
Mary, the five-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Macuk, of Brinkerton, who died at the home there, was buried Saturday in the Polish cemetery following funeral services in the home at Brinkerton.

Personal.
Mr. and Mrs. Orville George of Millvale, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. D. L. George.

Claude Byers of New York city, is spending his vacation here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Byers.

At the Theatres

ORPHEUM THEATER.

"THE HELL-HOUND OF ALASKA"
W. S. Hart's versatility as an actor is evidenced to a high degree in his portrayal of Yukon Ed, the leader of men in "The Hell-hound of Alaska." Here as the protector of Ruby McGraw his standards of right and wrong are his only gauge. Whether the common demands dash and snap, or coolness, deliberation and kindness, Hart is equally qualified to meet it. Paramount's weightiest comedian, Fatty Arbuckle, has been caught in the toils of a beautiful but unscrupulous vampire accomplice of a crook. But, luckily this occurs in "Oh, Doctor!" He appears as "Dr. I. O. Dine" and it is one of the greatest laugh-getting parts he has played.

THE PARAMOUNT.

THE HOUSE OF GOLD—A five-part Metro feature in which Fanny Wehlen, the beautiful and talented star of the Metro players, appears in a charming role, is being shown today. She is seen in the role of Pamela Martin, who lived in a "House of Gold" and had everything a girl could desire, yet she was not happy. The cares of the household weighed heavily on her shoulders. She did not have to work, but she had to be a perpetual hostess and wear wonderful gowns for the pleasure of her husband. She married a man of wealth and had to cater to his whims. In this brilliant picture play Miss Wehlen wears many elaborate gowns, which are said to surpass anything that this screen fashion plate has ever worn before the moving picture camera. A picturesque Hawaiian hall is one of the noteworthy novelty incidents introduced during the course of the swift-moving action of the production. A native orchestra and rula-hula dancers make this society event one of the biggest of the season. "The House of Gold" is the vital, compelling sort of drama in which Miss Wehlen, the gifted actress, shines. Chief in her support is Joseph Higour, who plays the roving husband, and his twin brother. Hugh Thompson plays the part of Frank Steele, the young attorney who finally wins the girl, played by Fanny Wehlen. Tomorrow, Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne will appear in "Social Quicksand." Thursday, June Evidge and John Bowers will be presented in "Joan of the Woods." Friday and Saturday "The Soul of Buddha," featuring Theda Bara, will be the attraction.

ARCADE THEATRE.

The attraction at the Arcade Theatre this week will be Orth & Coleman's Majestic Merry-makers, which comes to this city very highly recommended. It is something new in tabloid and altogether should prove to be one of the best little shows that has played the popular yadoville theatre for quite a while. The company carries special scenery and up to date wardrobe. Besides Mr. Orth and Mr. Coleman there are several other principal characters with the supporting cast of seven real live dancing dolls in the chorus. On the screen will be seen as usual Helen Holmes, the fearless film favorite in the "Lost Express."

Electric Battleship.

The United States is the first nation to use electricity in place of steam to propel a battleship. That will be the motive power on the dreadnaught California—where it will be used according to a method that has been thoroughly tested and perfected on the big 19,000-ton coiler Jupiter, where it has proved most successful. The advantages are many. As the speed of a vessel run by electricity can be instantly changed, the dangerous "racing" of the propellers in heavy seas can be prevented. Then, an electric-power plant occupies far less space and weighs less than marine engines that produce an equal amount of energy. Finally, the cost of maintenance and repairs is much less, and there is a great saving in coal. The new dreadnaught will probably have two plants; if one gets out of order, the ship can still proceed by means of the other.

Persian Lamb Fur.

It is said that after enormous dangers and difficulties, the secret of producing the lambs from which the Persian lamb fur is secured, has at length been brought to America by an official of the United States department of agriculture. This official, Doctor Young of Texas, made extensive investigations in Bokhara, and succeeded in discovering the kind of sheep whose lambs produce the so much sought after fur. Contrary to common belief, the fur is not taken from unborn lambs, but from those a few days old. It is said that there is possibility of our own department of agriculture taking up this work also, and that the lambs will be raised both in Canada and the United States. — East and West.

Missed Her Opportunity.

Mrs. Blount—I could have married four of the wealthiest men in town. Her husband—Why didn't you? The whole four might have been able to pay your dress bills.

The Reason.

"Fortune frowned on him."
"What did he expect. If you want to get a smile out of fortune you've got to do something more than just try to flirt with her."

Well Versed.

"Pop, what's a synonym?"
"It's one of them places where you get a big salary and no work to do. Always come to your father, my boy, when you want to know anything."

The Usual Way.

"What is that string around your finger for?"
"That is to remind me that I forgot something my wife tied it there for me to remember."

Plain Evidence.

"The young writer we met the other day told me he looks into his heart and writes."
"Yes, it is evident he does not look into his head."

He Knew.

Bridge-Goose—Just look at that young wife. Doesn't she look queerly?
Friend—Yes, she does; but wait until she goes.

Emphatically Asserts Worn Out, Lagging Men Can Quickly Become Vigorous and Full of Ambition

7 A DAY FOR 7 DAYS

Don't blame the man who is perpetually tired; his blood needs more red corpuscles and his brain and nerves are craving for food.

Given the right kind of medicine, any tired-out, inactive, lagging fellow can quickly be made into a real live, energetic and even ambitious man.

So says a student of the nervous system who advises all men and women who feel worn out and who find it hard to get up ambition enough to take a regular job to get a package of Bio-feren at any drugstore.

This is the new discovery that pharmacists are recommending because it is not expensive and speedily puts vigor and ambition into people who despaired of ever amounting to anything in life.

People whose nerves have been wrecked by too rapid living, too much tobacco or alcohol, have regained their old-time confidence and energy in less than two weeks.

No matter from what cause your nerves went back on you; no matter how run down, nervous or tired out you are, get an original package of Bio-feren at once. Take two tablets after each meal and one before bedtime—seven a day for seven days—then one after each meal till all are gone.

Then if you still lack ambition; if your nerves are not steady and you haven't the energy that red-blooded, keen-minded men possess, your purchase money will be gladly returned.

Note to Physicians: There is no secret about the formula of Bio-feren, it is printed in every package. Here it is: Lactidin, Calcium Glycophosphate, Iron Peptonate, Manganese Peptonate, Est. Nerv. Yoniol, Powdered Gentian, Phenolphthalein, Clearestin, Capsicum, Kola.

WHAT CAN WE + DO?

Red Cross Work in German Prison Camps

Germany now has 27 prison camps where American soldiers captured in battle are held.

The American Red Cross has accurate information about these camps and with the aid of the Swiss Red Cross keeps our soldiers and sailors supplied with nourishing food, new clothing, soap and other necessities.

At the beginning of June there were about 800 men in uniform in German prison camps. The American troops have captured considerably more than 1,000 Germans, so the score is more than even in that respect.

In Bern, Switzerland, the American Red Cross has a great warehouse from which is sent to each American prisoner in Germany 20 pounds of food every week. Our government pays for this food and equipment and the Red Cross sees that it reaches the men.

Already there are enough supplies in the Red Cross warehouse at Bern to take care of 22,000 American prisoners—if the Germans can take that number!

Junior Red Cross members will not cease their efforts during vacation.

While they were in the schools they could be reached more easily but organization work among the children has gone so far that the chapters are still closely to touch with them and benefiting vastly by their help.

At present many chapters are asking the junior members to help get out some rush orders for knitted articles, comfort bugs and hospital supplies. They are doing this in preference to their regular junior work.

Any Junior Red Cross member who has lost contact with the Red Cross organization since school closed should go to the local chapter headquarters and offer his or her services.

Of course, any child not now a member of the Junior Red Cross will be cordially welcomed by the Red Cross.

Dickerson Run.

DICKERSON RUN, Aug. 10.—John Francis of Glassport, was transacting business here yesterday.

T. D. Schuyler is spending this week on a business trip to New York. He is accompanied by his daughter, Miss Aida, and Miss Gladys Haney.

Mrs. H. C. Wilhelm was shopping and calling on Conneltsville friends yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. F. E. Blose returned to her home at Pittsburgh last evening after spending several days visiting Dawson friends.

The Mount Draddock baseball team met the Dickerson Run Y. M. C. A. team on the Y. M. C. A. field Thursday evening. The game was the best seen here this season. The game was called at the end of the eighth inning on account of darkness, the score being a tie, 1-1. The game will be played off in a short time. The features of the game were the pitching of Cole & Mount Draddock, and of Cole of the Y. M. C. A., and the fielding of Frank Black.

Better Than Coal.
Flatbush—According to an Italian scientist's figures a square mile of the earth's surface in six hours of sunshine receives heat equivalent to the combustion of more than 2,600 tons of coal.

Bausonhurst—Order your sunshine now before the rush begins.
Patrons to those who advertise.

Handkerchiefs.
If the handkerchiefs are yellow, the reason is that they have not been properly washed. To overcome this yellow color put the handkerchiefs in cold water, in which there is kerosene, about one teaspoonful to a quart, and a shaving of good laundry soap. Let the handkerchiefs boil in this about three hours. Take them out, dry in the sun, and they will be snowy white. This treatment will apply to any linen or white clothing.

Using Hudson Seal.
Hudson seal is to be seen on many coats of duvety and velour, and is most effective on such autumn colors as mahogany, nigger brown, battleship gray and navy.

Hindu Haircut.
You have noticed men with that new style haircut which looks as though the barber had placed a crook over the subject's head and then cut off everything in sight? The Coffeyville Journal says very few barbers like to give that kind of a haircut, but some patrons insist upon it, and so they get it. The Journal asked a barber the other day what the men of the "profess" thought of that style of shearing and he replied: "Well, just confidentially, we barbers call that the Hindu haircut."—Kansas City Star.

Former Owner Gets Famous Dog.
Auburn Happy, who is probably the most famous dog in Burlington, Vt., has returned to the ownership of Charles H. Mower after an absence of a couple of years. Mr. Mower sold the dog for $1,500 to Mrs. George E. Dresser of Thompson, Conn., with the understanding that if anything should happen to Mrs. Dresser Auburn Happy was to be returned to Mr. Mower. Mrs. Dresser is now in ill health and has returned the dog to its first owner.

American War Tractors Help.
In connection with the increased food production in the United Kingdom shown by official reports, it is interesting to know that a very great part of this increase has been made possible by the importation of American motor tractors since the beginning of the food campaign in November 1915.

"Hindu Haircut"

You have noticed men with that new style haircut which looks as though the barber had placed a crook over the subject's head and then cut off everything in sight? The Coffeyville Journal says very few barbers like to give that kind of a haircut, but some patrons insist upon it, and so they get it. The Journal asked a barber the other day what the men of the "profess" thought of that style of shearing and he replied: "Well, just confidentially, we barbers call that the Hindu haircut."—Kansas City Star.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN

Tells Aged People How to Get More Strength

Here is another link in the chain of evidence to prove that our famous cod-liver and iron tonic Vinol creates strength for feeble old people.
Mr. Nelson H. Pease of the National Soldiers home, Tennessee, says:
—"I am 74 years of age and was in a weak, debilitated condition, poor appetite and did not sleep well.
Vinol gave me a good appetite. I sleep well, and it has built me up so I feel stronger and better in every way.
I strongly recommend Vinol for such conditions as I believe it prolongs life
for old people."

School Stockings Should Be Purchased Now

The steadily increasing size of the United States Army and its abnormal hosiery require-female knitters employed in this industry even at unprecedented wages are quitting daily to go into munition plants and it's clear enough that hosiery at present prices is a wise wise investment.
